TRANSFORMATION: A PLAN FOR JUNIATA

As we approach the turn of the century, Juniata College is taking bold steps to assure its place of prominence in the year 2000 and beyond.

A comprehensive plan for the college has been carefully developed and is comprised of students, faculty, staff and administrators, and professional planners from Cho, Wilks and Benn Architects of Baltimore, Maryland.

The transformation of the campus is an exciting and challenging endeavor which will address and assist in accomplishing the priorities, strategies and tactics designed to move Juniata forward in the context of its mission.

The plan will enhance the college as a community, preserving the unique aspects of the traditional Juniata culture, while bringing it into the 21st century with state-of-the-art instructional and residential facilities.

The Need For Transformation

Why does Juniata College need a comprehensive facilities plan?

The comprehensive plan means a great deal to the future of the institution. It will include: recruitment and retention of highly qualified faculty; an enhanced sense of community; endowment in support of scholarships; endowment in support of teaching; residence hall modernization (see sidebar on page 7); equipment acquisition; growth in the Annual Support Fund; and a modern Fine Arts and Humanities facility.

"I'm impressed by the plan," said Delbert J. McQuaide '58, chairman of the President's Development Council. "It is a positive step forward for the institution and a necessary one to provide a blueprint for the next century. It will be useful for attracting students and will provide for a strong sense of community. I am very impressed and supportive of the leadership of Juniata today. It is dynamic and forward looking and the plan is one aspect of the dynamism."

In an October 1991 meeting with alumni who serve as volunteers on various councils,

Dr. Robert W. Neff, college president, reported, "We are presently located in the top 100 national liberal arts colleges in this country [U.S. News and World Report 1991, September]. By the end of this decade we want to be in the top 50. We must measure our maturity and success as an institution not by how well our students do in Huntingdon, or Pennsylvania, or the Northeastern United States, but how well our students perform worldwide by the year 2001.

"One of our first agenda items must be to transform the physical environment in which we find ourselves," he continued. "We don't want to disrupt or destroy this campus. Our intent is not to intrude upon the present structure of campus life, but rather, it is to preserve the tradition and quality of the past while enhancing several aspects of the campus community. This campus can and should physically reinforce the college as a community."

The plan identifies several ways in which Juniata can bring together students, faculty and staff more effectively. The arts and humanities will be collected together in one place. The plan stresses the need to bring academics back to the heart of the campus instead of its present peripheral street location. Facilities utilized by the entire college community will remain centrally located as well.

"The plan is excellent," explained Dr. Karen Wiley Sandler, vice president and dean of academic affairs. "It captures the essence of our overall curricular direction by bringing into the center of campus the arts and the humanities. This physical placement reflects our recent curricular moves to strengthen the role of the arts and humanities while maintaining the traditional strengths we have in the social sciences and natural sciences."

The plan calls for the arts and humanities building, as well as a new student center, to be part of a Founders Hall complex, restoring and preserving the central structure of the campus. This design, which enables Juniata to recapture the historical center of campus, will include a central open space — a quad. A lovely grassy lawn, with flowers and trees, will stretch from Founders to Oller and will be made possible through the proposed closing of 18th Street and opening of 17th and 19th Streets. The quad will invite student travel throughout the area and should encourage informal learning opportunities, a highly valued educational component at Juniata.

Because many different levels of education take place at Juniata, lobbies in Beeghly Library, Oller Hall and the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center will provide casual settings for informal learning.

Recent alumna, Jeannette Zalder '91 explained, "Educational growth is not just an in-class process. Much of what I learned in my four years at Juniata came about outside the classroom. There is a definite need to enhance and provide places on campus for informal socializing — places where students can get together with other students or professors and discuss and exchange ideas. The spaces need to be easily accessible to both faculty and students."

Residence hall modernization includes plans for improved indoor and outdoor gathering places. "The facilities plan is an excellent piece of work," Dr. Arnold J. Tilden, Jr., vice president for educational planning and student services explained. "It is a well thought out approach to addressing future teaching and learning needs of our community."

"Refurbished residence halls will enhance our emphasis on student growth and development," he continued. "Residence halls should be more than shelter. They should serve as social laboratories for students to live and practice value-oriented concepts studied through the formal curriculum."

Evolution of the Facilities Plan

In January of 1990, the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, suggested that the administration consider engaging the services of a campus planning consultant. In May of 1990, the administration received authorization from the Buildings and Grounds Committee of the Board to hire a professional facilities planner to develop the campus master plan.

In August of 1990 the Administrative Unit, comprised of the college president and four vice presidents, developed the following charge to the campus planner: "To assist the college in the development of a comprehensive facilities plan for the campus. The plan should contribute positively towards the accomplishment of the college's mission and will address the priorities, strategies, and tactics adopted to achieve the mission. It is expected that the plan will consider best uses of existing facilities, appropriate siting of new facilities, and landscaping of the grounds with a view to the needs of the 21st century."

After a close review of proposals from several consulting firms, by members of the Buildings and Grounds Committee of the Board, a contract was signed with Cho, Wilks and Benn in December of 1990. President Neff, simultaneously appointed an Advisory Committee to oversee the work of the campus planner.

In the first phase, the campus planner, David Benn, collected and reviewed all pertinent information about the existing campus. An investigation of existing program facility use and expected requirements for the year 2000 was conducted. The study included extensive interviews of college personnel, a determination of current classroom utilization and an analysis of existing space use in each building.

After that critical phase was completed, the planners met with the Advisory Committee to share their observations and brainstorm possible alternatives for campus land-use and development. By May of 1991 the final report by Mr. Benn was presented to the Board of Trustees. The master plan was then approved.

The plan has received favorable support from members of every constituency group at Juniata College, according to William Alexander '66, vice president for financial affairs. Mr. Alexander was instrumental in leading the Advisory Committee. "I was very pleased with the results of the Advisory Committee's work. We didn't always agree, but we were able to compromise and find solutions," he said. Other members of the committee included Christopher Bush '92, student government president; Lisa Natale '93; Christopher Peterson '74, former associate professor of economics and business administration; Karen Rosell, associate professor of art; Arnold Tilden, Jr., vice president for educational planning and student services; Robert Wagoner, professor of philosophy; Dale Wampler, associate dean of academic affairs; and Jeanette Zalder '91.

Dr. Rosell explained, "As a member of the Advisory Committee, I am extremely proud of and very enthusiastic about the new campus plan. Under the guidance of David Benn, our committee worked incredibly well. I believe that we are all excited about what this plan means for the college's future."

A New Level of Sophistication

The plan will enable Juniata to fulfill its mission at a high level of sophistication, while providing an improved campus identity. Trees will line the boundaries of campus, Founders Hall will serve as a landmark for the south entrance to campus, landscaping and stronger gateways will mark the entrances to campus from other directions. The space between East Houses and Ellis Hall will be transformed into a picturesque park with pathways winding through trees and other greens.

Campus planner David Benn said making the campus more attractive will be a benefit for the larger community, as well. "A park-like setting, gateways, and nicer street treatments, will reinforce Juniata as a special area in Huntingdon."

Members of the administration have presented the campus plan to the Huntingdon Borough Council and received favorable response. Borough Manager Willis Shore '72, noted, "The facility improvement, grounds enhancement and programmed interaction with the Huntingdon community should make the public more acutely aware of and appreciative of Juniata College and its role in our borough. It is a super plan and I'm looking forward to its implementation."

Richard Stahl '68, Huntingdon County Planning and Development director added, "The plan will allow community planners and officials to anticipate the direction and the form of Juniata College growth and development. It will further give evidence to the community of Juniata's commitment to Huntingdon and the desire to be a good neighbor. The campus plan is well conceived and will provide an excellent framework for future development of the college."

The response to this comprehensive plan has been marvelous. It has generated a new enthusiasm and energy both on the campus and among the larger regional constituency group.

This plan will enable Juniata to provide its students with the type of education tomorrow's society will value most, while nurturing an environment where commitment to teaching, learning and citizenship is the highest priority. This plan will assure Juniata's place of prominence in the year 2000 and beyond.

Perhaps Harold Brumbaugh '33 summed it up best, "When the college is successful in fulfilling this campus facilities plan in a functional and attractive manner, the transformation of Juniata College will result in pride for students, faculty, administrators, alumni, parents, trustees and the community." ■

Residence Hall Modernization

Residence Hall renovation began this summer on the Juniata College campus in an effort to enhance residential facilities for students.

Sherwood Hall, built in 1961, is the first of Juniata's residence halls to undergo renovations in a plan which calls for the updating of all residence halls on campus, according to Jack Linetty, director of the physical plant.

Over the last several months, Sherwood Hall has been completely modernized, with the addition of thermostats, telephones and computer terminal links in each room. In addition to this, structural renovation also occurred.

A great deal of the plumbing has been renewed, with work completed on all phases (water supply, waste removal, etc.). New doors and ceilings have been installed and the hallways have received a fresh coat of paint. New ventilation systems have been placed in every room and the remodeled study lounges are complete with new furniture.

Sherwood Hall is now handicapped accessible. A wheelchair lift has been installed outside, and the bathroom, as well as three rooms on the first floor, have been modified to provide easier access.

Randy Deike, associate dean of students, explained, "When we started to consider renovation options, we felt it was important to consider not only the aesthetic and mechanical aspects of the building, but also to consider how we might improve the overall experience for residents in the building."

With student input, the student services staff identified several areas that would enhance the residential hall experience. According to Mr. Deike, study space has been increased on each floor and the staff is currently exploring ways to provide resource materials and personal lap top computers for those areas.

A separate television lounge now provides an area for more casual use such as small group activities, formal and informal meetings and small social gatherings. In addition to the smaller lounges, the Catharsis Lounge, in the basement, has been completely renovated and will be utilized for larger social activities and meetings. Several booths have been constructed, to create a "cafe atmosphere", adjacent to new cooking facilities in that area of the lounge.

The completion date for the work is set for later this month and all of the new telecommunications hook-ups are expected to be available for student use during the spring semester. The next residence hall to be updated will be North Hall in the spring and summer of this year. ■

AROUND AND BEYOND CAMPUS

PEAT MARWICK DIRECTOR ASSUMES JUNIATA V.P. POST

Donald D. Moyer, national director of economic development for KPMG Peat Marwick Management Consultants in San Francisco, has accepted the vice president for college advancement position at Juniata. In the position Mr. Moyer will be responsible for the fund raising, alumni relations, and college communications operations as well as other external relations of the college.

As Peat Marwick's national director of economic development Mr. Moyer managed the economic development strategy for New Orleans and the River Region Metrovision Partnership's strategic planning project, managed the revision of Nevada's Plan for Economic Diversification and Development, and directed and managed community economic development strategies and action plans for the cities of Pine Bluff, Arkansas and LaPorte, Texas.

He has provided development consulting services to the states of Connecticut, Illinois and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and served as special project consultant for the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Mr. Moyer is a frequent speaker to national groups and has conducted economic development workshops in northern and southern Louisiana for mayors, local development professionals and volunteers. He has also served as a visiting lecturer in the annual Basic Economic Development course at the Harrisburg campus of Penn State.

Prior to joining KPMG Peat Marwick in 1988, Mr. Moyer was president of Moyer and Associates of Houston, Texas, a regional economic development and marketing group. From 1985 to 1987 he served the city of Houston as the president and chief executive officer of the Houston Economic Development Council.

Mr. Moyer served from 1978 to 1985 as the director of Maryland Economic Growth Associates, Inc., a statewide, private sector organization for economic development. From 1976 to 1978 he was director of the Office of Economic and Community Development for West Virginia Governor John D. Rockefeller IV.

In addition, Mr. Moyer has been the vice president for civic affairs for the

Donald D. Moyer

J.L. Hudson Company of Detroit (1975-1976), chief executive officer for the Greater Scranton Chamber of Commerce in Scranton, Pa. (1973-1975), vice president for development and public affairs at West Virginia Wesleyan College (1973), and associate and senior economic advisor for John D. Rockefeller IV (1970-1972). In making the announcement of Mr. Moyer's appointment Dr. Robert W. Neff, president of Juniata College, noted the potential impact Mr. Moyer could have in moving the college into the next century.

"Don Moyer will bring a perspective to Juniata and the advancement operation that we have not had in the past," President Neff stated. "His emphasis will be on bringing a cohesive, comprehensive marketing approach to our entire external relations effort."

"Don's expertise in strategic planning and planning for change within a global context will provide precisely what we need to move aggressively through the decade. We couldn't be happier with the outcome of our search and the entire campus is looking forward to Don's arrival."

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Moyer cited the opportunity which exists at Juniata, and within higher education generally, as factors that influenced his decision.

"In every recent strategy for economic development that I have been involved in, whether at the state or metropolitan level," he said, "there has been a high priority given to higher education in stimulating regional growth. The timing for an educational institution to have a profound impact in our society could not be better. And viable educational institutions, like Juniata College, are deeply involved in their communities. The notion of institutions of higher learning living behind ivy covered walls is past. People at Juniata understand this."

"Institutions like Juniata also understand that the market fit that is most suitable to them is defined by the larger community. Outreach is critical," he said.

"From what I have seen, the strength of internal resources among the Juniata faculty — resources that we can tap to make Juniata stronger and better at identifying who we are and where we should be — is immense."

"The primacy of teaching at Juniata," Mr. Moyer concluded, "is what makes this institution outstanding, and the involvement of faculty in shaping student outcomes beyond the classroom is what makes this college truly unique."

Mr. Moyer's professional affiliations have included serving as principal staff advisor to the chairman of the White House Conference on Balanced National Growth and Economic Development from 1977 to 1978, Conference Board appointee to the U.S. secretary of commerce's Urban Policy Roundtable in 1976, current trustee of the AEDC Educational Foundation, and chairman of the finance committee of the University of Scranton board of trustees from 1974 to 1980.

Mr. Moyer received an M.S.S. degree from Bryn Mawr College, a B.D. degree from Lutheran Theological Seminary and an A.B. degree from Muhlenberg College.

He and his wife, Peggy, reside in Huntingdon.

Institutional Marketing Plan Presented By Task Force

Juniata College's Marketing Task Force, assigned by Juniata president Robert W. Neff the task of preparing an institutional marketing plan, presented the completed plan to the president and the Board of Trustees in October. The group had been meeting on a weekly basis since receiving the assignment in November of 1990.

The plan recommends initial steps to be taken to bring together the

In addition to specific strategies and tactics, the plan includes 13 recommendations. In part, these recommendations suggest improving student data collection methods and inter-office data retention systems; developing a systematic approach to correspondence to constituencies; sharing the large amount of data collected by college offices; implementing measures of performance; using the marketing group as a clearing house for information; providing ongoing support for marketing at the college.

In the report the task force noted, "there are many opportunities which will allow Juniata College to thrive in the '90s and beyond, and having a clear understanding of the opportunity, the market which will be most interested in what the institution has to offer, and the methods to most effectively present the product to the consumer, will allow us to maximize our strengths and capitalize on our opportunities...."

"Our goal," the report went on to say, "is to provide a sense of oneness and singular purpose to what we each must face in our day-to-day effort. Department challenges give way to institutional challenges and the challenges facing individual departments are challenges facing each of us. Our approach to marketing is to view the effort in a holistic, institution-wide manner...."

"Our approach to institutional marketing will be to extend the notion of the admissions funnel through the four-year educational experience, beyond commencement, and, in many cases, well into the individual's post-graduate career. The culmination of this approach will be to secure and sustain as many supporters of the college as we possibly can.

"The traditional view of the institution as a group of individual departments, each of which deals with a different constituency, may fall victim to this institutional approach to marketing. The fact is that those who enter at the funnel's widest point, and who at that time are impacted most directly through the admissions office, are the very same people who emerge at the funnel's most narrow point as supporters of the institution. Along the way these funnel travelers can be affected by faculty, administrators, publications, news stories, corporations, foundations, alumni, members of the Huntingdon community, business office staff, other students, dining hall staff, potential employers...."

The plan outlined specific strategies for affecting prospective students; alumni, parents and friends; guidance and transfer counselors and teachers; endorsements; the Church of the Brethren constituency; parents of prospective students; foundations and corporations; campaign leadership; the local community; and the media.

The plan was accepted by the president, the administrative unit and the Board of Trustees. It was endorsed marketing functions currently being undertaken through various administrative departments.

According to task force member David A. Gildea, director of college communications, the members of the group became convinced at an early stage in the process that for Juniata College to maximize the potential for good which exists at the college, the institution must mobilize all constituencies associated with the college.

"Each of us," he said, "whether student, faculty member, administrator, graduate, community member or trustee has the capability of having a positive impact on Juniata's marketing effort. For each individual we can enlist to proudly represent this institution to other groups of people, we multiply our strength and vitality. The most effective and valuable marketing tool," he asserted, "could well be the groundswell of support that comes from people talking to people about the opportunities, the spirit and the values available at Juniata College."

by alumni council through the action of the communications committee as well as the admissions committee.

The implementation phase of the plan will be put into effect through the first quarter of 1992.

Members of the Marketing Task Force were Charles Kensinger, former director of admissions; Christopher Umble '74, director of marketing and communications at PPG; David A. Gildea, director of college communications; William B. Martin, director of career planning and placement; Karen L. Orr, assistant director of alumni and church relations; and Carlton E. Surbeck, director of admissions.

Juniata Honors its Supporters During Annual Founders Club Dinner

Juniata College honored those who assisted in the fund-raising and development programs of the past year at the annual Founders Club dinner held during Homecoming Weekend 1991.

The 52-year-old Founders Club is comprised of donors who contribute $100 or more to the college annually. This year, membership reached an all time high with 2,354 persons.

In addition to honoring Founders Club members, Juniata President Dr. Robert W. Neff also noted the unparalleled success of this year's Annual Support Fund (ASF). Special recognition was given to the Class Fund Agents, who encouraged the contributions of 45% of Juniata alumni.

"The Class Fund Agents are the most important and most personal link between the alumni body and the Annual Fund. Without their efforts, the Annual Fund and what it supports would suffer," said Dr. Neff.

Co-chairs of the 1990-91 ASF, Helen and Richard Hollinger, were given special thanks for their efforts during the campaign. Also recognized was William E. Hershberger, chairperson for the 1991-92 ASF.

Dr. Neff also noted the increasing importance of the fund to Juniata College. In addition to providing scholarships for current students, the ASF also allows funding for educational equipment and programs on campus. This year, the Annual Support Fund contributions made possible the modernization of both Sherwood and North residence halls, the improvement of computer capabilities for the Education Department, and the addition of new pianos for the Music Department.

During his remarks, Dr. Neff also announced the initiation of a master plan to renovate the campus over the next decade. "Our strength lies in our strong sense of community and our commitment to individualized academic excellence. While preserving the traditional values of Juniata, this plan will transform the campus by providing a more personal location for campus interactions and by bringing to it state-of-the-art instructional and residential facilities."

New construction will occur in the area of Founders Hall, where a new Fine Arts and Humanities Center will be located. Work also includes the renovation of Founders Hall which, following the addition of a campus center, will once again be the focus of student life.

Following Dr. Neff's presentation, Janine Katonah, 1969 graduate of the college and current president of the Alumni Council, honored William von Liebig with this year's Alumni Achievement Award.

Mr. von Liebig, a native of Huntingdon and a 1947 graduate of Juniata, is chairman and chief executive office of Meadox Medicals, Inc. of Oakland, New Jersey. Internationally recognized for his work in the field of vascular technology, Mr. von Liebig offered remarks to the group before Dr. Neff closed the dinner by once again thanking those who contributed both energy and resources to Juniata over the past year.

Award Recipients

Eight students were selected as the recipients of the second annual Community Contribution Awards on Homecoming Weekend for the time and energy they give to others. These students represent the ideals of community service at all levels. Their contributions extend beyond the campus into the local community, into hometowns and other areas of the world. Faculty, students and staff members nominated students for this award and a carefully chosen selection committee, comprised of students, faculty and administrators determined the recipients. The award winners, pictured with Dr. Robert W. Neff, college president are (first row, left to right): Victoria Masotta '93, Jennifer Serfass '92 and Rebecca Wentling '92; (second row, left to right): Andrew Loomis '92, Ayinde Alakoye '94 and Joel Meyer '92.

JUNIATA HONORS RECIPIENT OF ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Juniata College recently presented its prestigious Alumni Achievement Award to William von Liebig during the Founders Club Dinner, held as part of Homecoming Weekend festivities. The Founders Club is an organization made up of Juniata's most dedicated financial supporters.

Mr. von Liebig, a 1946 graduate of the college, was honored for his contributions in the fields of vascular technology and international business. Mr. von Liebig is the chairman and chief executive officer of Meadox Medicals, Inc., of Oakland, New Jersey, a company internationally recognized for its production of vascular prosthesis products.

Mr. von Liebig has received much acclaim for his work, which aided in the development and manufacturing of a woven dacron tubing for blood vessel replacement in the late 1950s.

After graduating from Juniata, Mr. von Liebig received his master's degree from the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Sciences in 1949. He then went on to earn his M.B.A. from New York University in 1951. He has also studied at Augustana College and the University of Pennsylvania. Now residing in Naples, Florida, Mr. von Liebig has given lectures to the international medical community, and in 1976, received the Gold Hektoen Award from the American Medical Association.

Before beginning his business career, Mr. von Liebig served as a command pilot in the U.S. Air Force, where he was awarded a Distinguished Flying Cross and a Presidential Citation with oak leaf cluster.

According to Dr. Robert W. Neff, president of the college, Mr. von Liebig's contributions to the medical profession have been felt by physicians around the world. "William von Liebig's long-term impact on health care is going to be profound," he said. "We are so pleased to be able to recognize his many achievements in this way. It is most fitting that the alumni association, which includes so many physicians and health care providers, should choose to honor this man."

In introducing Mr. von Liebig, Janine Katonah, president of the Juniata College National Alumni Association, said, "It has been a privilege to have Mr. von Liebig and his wife Suzanne von Liebig here with us this weekend and it has been especially good to honor this distinguished Juniata alumnus."

The achievement award citation, as read by Ms. Katonah, referred to Mr. von Liebig's many accomplishments through the course of his life. Ms. Katonah concluded reading the citation by saying, "Your accomplishments are many and varied and reveal a quality of performance worthy of recognition. It is both an honor and a pleasure to present you with this citation of achievement by the direction of the Alumni Council."

Born in Huntingdon, Mr. von Liebig is the son of the late William and Gertrude Liebig. His sister, Edith, continues to reside in the area.

JUNIATA COMMUNITY REACHES OUT TO OTHERS

by Patrick Wilshire '92

Juniata students, faculty and staff are engaged in a cooperative Habitat For Humanity project with members of the Huntingdon community.

Anna Harris still seemed somewhat bewildered by the entire thing.

"It's really overwhelming," she said, "to realize that all these people, who don't know me, are willing to do this."

By "this" she was referring to the building of her house, accomplished by volunteers and financed with an interest-free mortgage courtesy of the organization involved - the Huntingdon Area Habitat For Humanity.

The Habitat For Humanity is a worldwide organization dedicated to helping the working poor afford quality housing. To this end they follow the biblical injunction regarding the lending of money (from Ecclesiastes, to be specific) barring the charging of interest on money. The inspiration for the organization came in the 1950's from a man named Clarence Jordan, but the true founder of Habitat For Humanity as it exists today was Millard Fuller.

The whole success of the group is built on support from the community volunteerism, and donations.

"The idea is that those who have the capability to build houses should help those who do not," said local Habitat member and Juniata employee William Blazina. Blazina's wife, Mary a 1991 graduate of Juniata College, was responsible for the creation of the Huntingdon chapter just three years ago. After deciding that it would be difficult for peace organizations to have an impact at the world-wide level, she felt that something could instead be done in her home community of Huntingdon. It took three years for the Huntingdon chapter to get its finances together and to become incorporated with Habitat For Humanity worldwide. The current project is the first one to occur in Huntingdon.

The lot which the house is being built on, as well as the necessary materials, were purchased with money initially staked to the group by the Church of the Brethren and local contributors.

Anna Harris' mortgage payments will be plowed back into the group's till towards building another home, planned for the spring of 1992.

Local involvement with the Habitat For Humanity does not stop with the community of Huntingdon proper, however. Juniata College has been quite active in its support for the project.

"We provide labor, sometimes donate materials, and, in fact, we are right now giving input into the decisions being made for the second house to be built," said Victoria Masotta '93, president of the Juniata College chapter of the Habitat For Humanity. The Juniata chapter works in conjunction with the Huntingdon chapter, and Victoria likes that.

"I got into it because I felt the need to give something back to the community here, rather than just to come and take for four years. Not only that, but this project helps to build a link between the college and the community at large."

There were roughly 25 students involved in the project, as well as 15 faculty and staff members. Work was begun in the summer, but most student involvement has occurred during the weekly Saturday building sessions which have gone on since school started in late August.

When Anna herself was asked about the project, she immediately defended it.

"Some people seem to have a problem with it," she said, "and I think that the problem is that they just don't understand it. They think that it's charity, that I'm getting something for free, and that's just not the case. I have to pay for the cost of this house and also put in 500 hours of labor, both on my own house and other projects."

Anna went on to describe her present apartment, the biggest drawback of which seemed to be the heat. Or rather, the lack thereof.

"I don't control the heat," she said, "so I get whatever they give me. Working at the day care clinic means I have to get up between 5:30 a.m. and 6:00 a.m., and I really hate waking up to the cold. Not only that, but my little three-year old daughter wakes up to the cold, too."

When asked about her daughter's ideas of the new house, Anna responded like a true mother.

"Well, she's got the concept; she knows that this is going to be our house, and that we're moving. She tells all of her friends that she has a house, and that it's blue, and that it even has a roof." Anna laughed.

"My biggest problem with the house," Anna continued, "was that, at first, I couldn't shake the feeling that there were people who needed it more than I did. Not that I don't need it, now mind you, but I felt that there might be others who needed it more. That took a while to get over."

"The really great thing is that it's such a cooperative effort. The people working on the house aren't working for me, and I'm not just standing by and taking. I'm actually learning a lot. If I see something that I don't understand, I ask, and somebody patiently explains it to me. It really is my house, and not only am I learning a lot about the process of house building, but I also got to make a great many of the aesthetic decisions about the house. I picked the floor plan, for example, out of a book of possibilities, as well as things like the countertops, the flooring and the color of the house. It is, incidentally, a three-bedroom single floor house with a full basement. The basement was something that we had to work on, since most of the designs are based on Southern designs, and Southern houses don't have basements. But we adjusted."

"I should be in by Christmas," she said. "The original date was Thanksgiving, but I don't think that we're going to make that one. We had a few problems earlier, but we learned some things, so the next one should be easier. One example was the basement, in fact. We didn't hire a mason, and eventually ended up having to knock out two corners with sledgehammers. Next time, we'll hire a mason from day one."

Applications are being accepted for the next project, and the projected number of applications is considerably higher than the twelve that were received the first time around.

"All I can say about this is that I think that it is a great thing. Like I said before, it's just overwhelming. But it's nice to know that there are this many people in the world who really care about doing good things and helping people out. It really is."

Indian Mascot is Under Fire

With the World Series several months behind us, the "Tomahawk Chop" has been tucked into the equipment closet, at least until spring training begins next month. Yet the controversy facing athletic teams with mascots using references to Indians (Indians, Redskins, Braves, etc.) continues nationwide.

The Juniata College Indians are no exception. To many students a simple banner draped over a rail in the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center with the words "Scalp 'em Indians" means nothing more than encouragement for the home team. Native Americans, however, are speaking out against colleges, universities and professional athletic teams for using the Indian as a mascot.

The name "Juniata College" first appeared in public print in 1894, after 18 years as a Brethren Normal School. According to Dr. Earl Kaylor's book Truth Sets Free — A Centennial History of Juniata College, "the eponym 'Juniata,' of Indian origin, means beautiful. Legend has it that the nearby river is namesake of a 'comely Redskin lass.' "

Four years later, in 1898, the colors blue and gold were selected as official college colors. Varsity teams were known as the "blue and gold" until 1925. Dr. Kaylor explained in his book, "varsity teams had no 'fighting' nickname. They were simply the 'blue and gold.' Then in the spring of 1925 the Juniatian [the student newspaper] stumbled on the sobriquet 'Indian'." It was headlined in an article (April 9) about the opening game of the baseball season with Penn State. The Juniata College nine were the 'Indians' the rest of the schedule. The name stuck in the fall in the paper's coverage of pigskin play, and no one has come up with a better one since."

In April of 1972, an article appeared in the Juniatian with the headline "Juniata's Mascot Name No Longer Appropriate." The article was written by college president John N. Stauffer. Stauffer wrote, "There are many Juniata people — and I am among them — who believe that 'Indian' has not been used in a negative way. Instead, there has been a feeling of warmth and respect for the Indian heritage of the Juniata Valley.

"Nevertheless," he continued, "this feeling can not be readily communicated to others and it seems therefore, that a change should be made...we want to do this in deference to a worthy part of our society, the entire American Indian community."

The dialogue regarding the use of the Indian mascot remains lively on campus in the 1990s. The Human Concerns Committee and the Multi-Cultural Committee at Juniata were concerned about the use of the Indian name long before the "Tomahawk Chop" became a national issue. The theme for Parents' Weekend this fall was "Rediscovering Our Heritage." Part of the educational component of the weekend included a lecture by Native American Bill Miller titled, "Image Abuse Via Media and Myth," and a concert later that evening.

Miller's visit rekindled the campus debate which weeks later prompted a campus vote by students over the mascot name. Students voted 5 to 1 to keep the Indian name.

"The student poll emphasizes the need to continue to provide programs which foster increased awareness of all multi-cultural issues," explained William Huston, associate dean of students for programming. "I believe the poll reflects a prevailing social view, which, regardless of intent, is capable of doing a great injustice to an entire race of people. As majority members, we must respect the dignity of others as a more prominent variable than popularity or traditions."

In November, Dr. Robert W. Neff, college president, addressed members of Student Government. He reported to the group that he is committed to changing the name, but that students will assist with looking at alternatives. He encouraged students to: write to the National Congress of American Indians; hold an open forum on the issue; and formulate alternative courses of action.

"The administration is pushing hard for a change," said Dr. Neff. "We are not wavering on this issue, we must face the fact that it is inappropriate and challenge the college community to assist in finding a suitable alternative. The mood and climate in this country is sensitive to the concerns of the Native Americans and this issue will not disappear at Juniata."

In a recent memo to the president, one faculty member summed up the concern, "Do we as educators truly believe the inaccurate painted representations of Native Americans, a Hollywood composer's re-creation of a 'war chant,' an eating and gathering place called 'the Totem Inn,' students mimicking a Hollywood 'war whoop,' slogans such as 'Scalp 'em Indians,' references to 'the Tribe, the Indian Club, Smoke Signals Newsletter,' etc., etc., are expressions of respect? playful jokes? honorable tradition? What exactly do these things have to do with our 'Mission?'"

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Ei-Ichiro Ochiai, professor of chemistry, presented a paper: "Tyrosyl Radical Formation in the Small Subunit of Mammalian Ribonucleotide Reductase" (incorporating the results of research done by S. Swierczynski '91) at the 5th International Conference on Bioinorganic Chemistry held in Oxford, UK, August 4 - 10. He has recently had a book: "Metals and Life" published (Kyoritsu Publ., Tokyo). His article, "Biom mineralization: Principles and Applications in Bioinorganic Chemistry - V" appeared in the Journal of Chemistry Education 68, 627-630 (1991).

In July, Ibrook Tower, associate professor of music, presented a paper "The Concert Band and Wind Ensemble Music of Bruce Yurko" at conferences of the World Association for Symphonic Bands and Ensembles and the British Association of Symphonic Bands and Wind Ensembles held at the Royal Northern College of Music in Manchester, England. He also played clarinet in the Johnstown Symphony's July 4th Concert.

Doug Glazier, professor of biology, presented a paper titled "Effect of pH and  $Ca^{++}$  and  $Mg^{++}$  Hardness on the Abundance, Physiology, and Reproductive Output of the Amphipod Gammarus Minus" at the annual meeting of the North American Benthological Society in Santa Fe, New Mexico during May 1-25. The paper was co-authored with Juniata alumni Mary Gembe '91 and Michael Horne '91.

His paper, "Global Patterns of Ecological Efficiency at the Biome-level" was published in the September 1991 issue of Oikos.

Deb Kirchhof-Glazier, professor of biology was invited to give the graduation speech at the Altoona Hospital Medical Technology School. Her speech was titled, "Who's Behind the Specimen?: The Human Aspect of Medical Technology."

She recently accepted a position on the Board of Directors for the Collegiate Division of Penn HOSA (Pennsylvania Health Occupations Students of America).

Dave Reingold, associate professor of chemistry, attended the Council on Undergraduate Research meeting June 13-15 at Richmond, Va. He also attended the National Organic Chemistry Symposium in Minneapolis from June 16-20 with five students. He presented a poster, "A Novel Syntheses of Bicyclo 3.3.0 octane-2,8-dione" along with students Todd Emrick '92, Eric McElroy '90 and Joachim Hellmann '90.

Dr. Reingold also attended the Virgil Boehelheide symposium in Eugene, Oregon on August 17 and presented a poster "3.3.1 propellane-2,8-dione" along with students Andrea Oellerich, Erin Sheets '91 and Todd Emrick '92.

Peter Peregrine, assistant professor of anthropology, attended an NSF-sponsored summer institute in comparative anthropological research at UCLA July 24 - August 13. His paper titled "Some Political Aspects of Craft Specialization" was published in World Archaeology 23(1): 1-11.

Harriet Darling, associate professor of education, conducted a training session on observing young children for area Head Start personnel on September 13.

Diane Gold, instructional assistant in music and faculty flutist, performed this August in Washington DC at the National Flute Association convention. Other performances this summer included performances at Long Island, California and Philadelphia.

Diane also performed with Penns Woods Music Festival at Penn State and in a production of The Fantastiks at Juniata. Her Huntingdon Trio of Philadelphia has recorded their second compact disc "Masques" which is available in the campus bookstore.

Chris Coller, assistant football coach and assistant track coach, recently completed requirements for his master's degree in counseling from Millersville University.

Paul Marshall, J. Omar Good Visiting Professor, attended the American Political Science Association meetings in Washington, DC on August 29-31.

On September 15, he led a conference in Baltimore for the pastors of the Mid-Atlantic Region of the Church of the Brethren on the theme of "The Church and Politics."

Andy Murray, director of The Baker Institute of Peace and Conflict Studies, recently chaired a session at the September 25 meeting of the International Association of University Presidents/United Nations (IAUP/UN) Commission on Arms Control. Dr. Murray is one of 47 members of the commission's steering committee that was formed last spring and met for the first time in June.

The commission's ultimate aim is to expand the teaching of arms control courses world-wide. The commission hopes to build on the outstanding work already done in peace, security and world order studies at selected colleges and universities, including Juniata.

Dr. Murray's review of Burns H. Weston's "Alternative Security: Living Without Nuclear Deterrence" was published in the July issue of the Bulletin of Science Technology & Society.

He attended the American Society for Engineering Education 1991 Annual Conference in New Orleans where he responded to an ethics paper presented by Dr. Richard Devin of NASA. Murray was also an invited presenter for a paper titled "Systems, Imagination, and Peace."

Jarmila Polte, director of language labs, attended a conference of the North East

Association for Learning Laboratories (NEALL) at St. Lawrence University in Cauton, NY. The conference was concerned with the theory, design and application of foreign language instructional media in a learning lab environment, including new technology and software.

Susan Radis, associate professor of sociology, was presented with an award for her significant contribution to the growth of Parents Anonymous in Pennsylvania and for her efforts in the prevention of child abuse and neglect at the Annual Conference of Parents Anonymous of Pennsylvania on June 20-21 in Harrisburg.

Keith Mann, assistant professor of geology, participated in the National Science Foundation Undergraduate Enhancement Program - Modern Carbonate Environments, Diagenesis, Soil Formation, and Pleistocene Analogs on San Salvador, Bahamas.

David Sowell, assistant professor of history, received a National Endowment for the Humanities Travel to Collections Grant for research on social violence in nineteenth century Colombia over the summer. His recent publications include: "Artisans and Latin American Labor History," Latin American Labor News, No. 4 (1991), 5-10; review of The Problem of Order in Changing Societies: Essays on Crime and Policing in Argentine and Uruguay, 1750-1940 ed. by Lyman Johnson, published in the Hispanic American Historical Review; review of Economic Change and Rural Resistance in Southern Bolivia, 1880-1930, by Erick Langer, published in Southeastern Latin Americanist; and "The Social Consequences of Liberalism: Artisans and Tariff Reform in Early National Spanish America," in Constitutional Order and State Finance: The Liberal Experience in Nineteenth Century Latin America, edited by Vincent Peloso and Barbara Tenenbaum, forthcoming by the University of Pittsburgh Press.

Loren Rhodes, associate professor of mathematics and computer science, successfully defended his doctoral thesis titled, "Behavioral Extraction and Timing Analysis of Digital Circuits via Reverse Synthesis," on October 3 at the Pennsylvania State University.

José Nieto, professor of religion and history, has had his article titled, "El Bifrontismo Frayjuancruciano" (the Bifrontalism of St. John of the Cross) published in the last September issue of Insula Revista de Letras y Ciencias Humanas (Review of Literature and Human Sciences), published in Madrid, Spain. The article explores the complex backward and forward looking, i.e. Medieval and Renaissance world view of this universally known mystic and poet. The Insula issue is a special volume devoted to St. John of the Cross. All articles in this issue were contributed at the request of the editor to commemorate the fourth centennial of the death of St. John of the Cross. Scholars from the United States and Europe were invited to participate; Dr. Nieto is one of two scholars representing the USA.

ENERGY AND EXCITEMENT = ALUMNI COUNCIL

by Janine Katonah '69
President, National Alumni Association

Thirty-three dedicated alumni who meet on campus three times each year have a great deal to do with the atmosphere of vitality that characterizes Juniata's National Alumni Association. The Alumni Council serves as the governing body of the Alumni Association and takes very seriously its responsibility of service on behalf of the other alumni.

Providing leadership for the Alumni Council are its four officers: president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. There are 18 members serving three years who are elected at large by ballot in the Bulletin. In addition, three Alumni Council members also sit on Juniata's Board of Trustees. A representative from the faculty is chosen by the college president in consultation with the faculty's Executive Committee. Three student members represent the Student Government, Center Board and the Senior Class. Rounding out the Alumni Council are four ex-officio members: the College President, Vice President for College Advancement, Director of College Communications and Director of Admissions.

Each member of Alumni Council is appointed to a standing committee which meets separately on the same day as the entire Council's meeting. The five standing committees are: Admissions, Alumni Events, Awards and Nominations, Communications and Development. With members representing classes from 1927 to 1987, Alumni Council meetings are dynamic and productive.

With more and more alumni returning to campus for Homecoming and Reunion Weekend, the Alumni Council works closely with the dedicated staff of the Alumni Relations Office to plan and carry out exciting weekend events that include meals, sporting events, musical and theatre events, and more. Highlighting those weekends is recognition of the recipients of the Alumni Service and Alumni Achievement Awards and, in May, the annual meeting of the National Alumni Association.

Being a part of Alumni Council is fun. Where else can you find a cross-section of Juniata alumni whose sharp minds and life experiences are brought together in such a creative way?!

If you are interested in the Alumni Council and its work, or if you would like to nominate another alumnus or alumna to Council, there is a nominating form in this (and every) issue of the Bulletin. Send it in today!

PARENTS' COUNCIL RECONVENES

The meeting of the Parent Council on September 21 opened with remarks by Dr. Robert W. Neff, college president. He focused on the theme for Parents' Weekend, "Rediscovering Our Heritage."

William Hershberger '57, chairperson of the Annual Support Fund for 91-92, discussed the Annual Support Fund goals and objectives for the new fiscal year.

Dr. Arnold J. Tilden, Jr., vice president for educational planning and student services, updated the council on the institutional strategic planning process.

The meeting continued, with a presentation by Michelle Bartol, associate director of admissions, and Michael J. Ford, director of internships and business outreach. They explained ways in which parents could assist Juniata College with recruitment of prospective students, and student placement in internship positions.

William B. Martin, director of career planning and placement, then spoke about the many opportunities available to students through job fairs across the state and encouraged students to take advantage of those fairs.

The Council, which included 14 parents, decided to have a spring meeting, with dates to be announced later.

"This group of people is very interested in the activities of Juniata College and promise to be very active in future events," said Karen Orr '76, assistant director of alumni and church relations.

REUNION WEEKEND WILL FOCUS ON “TRADITIONS”

Alumni returning for Reunion Weekend on May 15, 16 and 17, 1992 will be privy to some top secret information.

The announcement of the celebration date of Mountain Day, the oldest campus tradition, is typically kept a secret until the morning of the event. This year, however, the Office of Alumni Relations is planning a special Mountain Day for alumni on Saturday, May 16 at Greenwood Furnace. Traditional Mountain Day food will be served and activities will include volleyball, tug-of-war, and a nature hike conducted by Charles E. Yohn '83, adjunct instructor of biology.

Mark Your Calendars For May 15, 16, 17!

With “Traditions” as the theme, a full slate of activities has been scheduled. The weekend will be kicked off Friday evening with the Friday Night Class parties. The National Alumni Council, under the direction of council president Janine Katonah '69, will reconvene for the spring meeting at Greenwood Furnace on Saturday morning. The Mountain Day picnic will consume most of the day on Saturday, followed by a reception, semi-formal dinner and dance on Saturday evening with a traditional Madrigal flare. The sit down dinner in Baker Refectory will be served to alumni by members of the college community, the alumni council and the Board of Trustees. Entertainment will be provided by alumni and will include the “Twelve Days of Christmas,” a favorite Madrigal activity among students for more than two decades. The program will include the announcement of new council members and passing of the gavel from Ms. Katonah to Tom Hildebrandt '85. The Alumni Service Award recipient will be announced at the same time.

An alumni worship service is planned for Sunday morning at the Stone Church of the Brethren followed by a cruise on Raystown Lake.

All alumni are invited to celebrate the weekend of traditions. The classes observing a reunion are: Emeriti, 1942, 1947, 1952, 1957, 1962, 1967, 1972, 1977, 1982 and 1987. In addition, the class of 1947 has extended special invitations to the 1945, 1946 and 1948 classes. More information will follow in late March.

Those who wish to plan an extended sojourn on campus can participate in the “Alumnihostel” planned by Harold Brumbaugh '33 and George Dolnikowski, professor emeritus, and directed by Dr. Jay Buchanan, director of counseling services, on May 18-22. The program is designed to exercise creativity and stimulate the fundamental values - spiritual, moral and aesthetic- which give meaning and structure to life.

ALUMNI INVITED TO STUDY AT JUNIATA

Alumni may find themselves back in the classroom on the Juniata College campus on May 18-22, 1992 as part of a new “alumnihostel” program.

Modeled after the national elderhostel program, Juniata is planning a full week of activities for alumni and their guests, according to Dorothy L. Hershberger, director of alumni relations.

Alumni may visit Greenwood Furnace where Paul Heberling, professor of anthropology emeritus, will discuss the archeological significance of his findings.

Dr. Karen Rosell, associate professor of art, will discuss American art. Dr. Rosell is one of Juniata's more popular young professors who has rekindled students' interest in the study of art history.

Dr. Brad Small, head football and men's tennis coach, will take participants into the Binder Natatorium and introduce them to water aerobics. Those who are interested may enroll in a session on relaxation techniques which will include hypnosis (contrary to popular belief, you cannot be hypnotized against your will).

Dr. Wilfred Norris, William I. and Zella B. Book professor of physics, will attempt to demystify the study of physics. Alumni will participate in enjoyable and educational experiments to better understand a number of principles of physics.

George Dolnikowski, well-known professor of Russian and German emeritus, will present a week long study of Russian-American culture for participants in the program.

The “alumnihostel” group will stay in residence halls and eat in Baker Refectory. Campus facilities will be utilized for recreation. More information and a registration form will be enclosed in the packet of Reunion Weekend materials to be mailed in March.

JUNIATA SPONSORS NEW OUTREACH PROGRAM

James Casey, assistant professor of theatre arts, discusses set construction for the production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" with high school students from Huntingdon and Blair Counties.

Rob Biter '92 and Christie Brown '92 work with students from Hollidaysburg Area High School as part of the theatre outreach program.

Nearly 1,000 high school students attended two matinee performances of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

When students from five area high schools sat down to watch the fall Juniata College Theatre production, "A Midsummer Night's Dream", they were able to see more than great theatre.

The 9th through 12th grade students from Hollidaysburg, Mount Union, Southern Huntingdon, Juniata Valley and Huntingdon high schools were able to analyze minute details of the play in preparation for a post performance discussion with the production's actors and staff.

The special performances were presented in conjunction with a new student outreach program sponsored by Juniata College Theatre. Developed by Dr. Ryan Chadwick, assistant professor of theatre arts at the college, and James Casey, assistant professor of theatre arts, the program offered high school students and teachers a rare educational opportunity.

Dr. Chadwick and Mr. Casey, with the assistance of Dr. Peter Goldstein, assistant professor of English, and Dr. Connie Maclay, assistant professor of education, distributed to the high schools study materials designed to develop an understanding of Shakespeare and the intricacies and subtleties of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Distribution of the study materials was coordinated by Juniata College seniors Christie Brown, a theatre arts major from Glenmoore, Pa. and Christine Krudwig, an arts administration major from Murrysville, Pa.

Over 500 high school students attended each of the special performances on November 6 and 7 in Oller Auditorium.

In addition to study aids and the opportunity to visit the college for one of the two special performances of the play, the high schools were invited to have Juniata faculty and students visit their schools. The outreach program members provided educational support in the areas of production, technical design, the thematic aspects of the play, and the play's structure.

"It's important for us to make contact with the community," said Dr. Chadwick, "This is our way of reaching out to high school students while assisting teachers in the educational process."

Dr. Chadwick worked with various school representatives who are involved in teaching classes in English, art and drama. Among those teachers involved in the project were Dorothy Hoover (English and advanced composition), Laurie Ricewick (English), Chris Walker (English), David Lang (English and humanities), Luella Wally (English), Martha Swigart (English), Kay Mundis (English) and Linda Reilly (humanities and advanced English) from the Huntingdon School District;

Jane Wagner (English) and Norman Wilson (art) from the Mt. Union School District;

Regina Hicks (English) and Elizabeth Robinson (English) from the Southern Huntingdon School District;

Barbara Espy (English), Grace Nieto (English), Melinda Port (English), and Michael Fields (English) from the Juniata Valley School District; and Sue Gunsallus (English) and Jim Murphy (English) from the Hollidaysburg School District.

Public presentations of the production "A Midsummer Night's Dream" were presented October 31 through November 3 and again from November 7 through 9.

Rev. Dr. Raymond Day Expires

A nationally-known minister, social worker and Juniata College trustee, the Rev. Dr. Raymond R. Day died at 3:30 a.m. Monday, Sept. 30, 1991, in the Evanston (Illinois) Hospital, following an extended illness.

The son of the late William H. and Nellie M. (Harris) Day, he was born in Huntingdon on April 13, 1919.

Surviving are seven children: Raymond R. Day Jr., of Seattle, Wash.; Renee A. White and William J. Day, both of Columbus, Ohio; Dorothy N. Day, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Frank C. Day, Pittsburg, Calif.; Winifred R. Day, Oakland, Calif.; and Helen E. Day, Mansfield, Ohio. Eight grandchildren also survive.

Also surviving are a brother, John D. Day, of Bellefonte, and two sisters, Lena D. Coleman of Hollidaysburg and Gretta M. Manning, McConnellstown.

Two brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

A graduate of Huntingdon High School and Juniata College, the latter in the class of 1945, he received a master in divinity degree from Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, in 1948; an M.S.S.A. from Case Western Reserve University, Chicago, in 1972; and also did additional studies at the University of Chicago. The Rev. Day was awarded two honorary doctoral degrees: an L.H.D., in 1966, from the College of Wooster, and an L.L.D., in 1971, from his alma mater, Juniata College.

The Rev. Day was ordained a Presbyterian minister on May 25, 1948. He served as pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Master in New York City from 1948-50 and at Grace Presbyterian Church, Seattle, and the Westminster Foundation at the University of Washington (Seattle), 1950-53.

From 1953-55, he was director of Grace Community Center, Chicago, then became executive director of Beacon Neighborhood House, in Chicago, where he served 13 years (1955-68). From 1968 until his retirement in 1983, he was assistant professor of sociology at the College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio.

At the time of his death, Dr. Day was serving as a member of the Juniata College Board of Trustees, a post he held since 1988. He was also a trustee of Presbyterian Ministries Inc. and was regional representative for the United Presbyterian Foundation.

It was Dr. Day's request that memorial contributions may be made to the Raymond R. Day Scholarship Fund, Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. 16652.

Museum Exhibit Goes Batty

Editor's Note: This story appeared in the August 10, 1991 issue of the Cincinnati Enquirer. It is reprinted with special permission from Lew Moores and the Cincinnati Enquirer. Gale Motter, a 1985 graduate of Juniata College, combined courses in biology and ecology with art courses to earn bachelor of science degree in zoology. She is a sculptor at the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History.

They are the stuff of myth and legend: They are rabid and blind and, as is their wont, get tangled in people's hair. They are most active at night, as was Count Dracula, and have gargoyle faces only a mother could love.

Yet, Gale Motter takes one in the palm of her hand. It is quite docile and soft to the touch. It chirps under the light pressure of a fingertip stroking its back.

Hardly the stuff of myth and legend.

"They are very beneficial," says Motter of the big brown bat in her hand. "They don't attack people, they do not get in your hair, they are not blind. If they get into your home, they do not chew on things, do not make a mess.

"If you can live with them, live with them. They're the best neighbors you can get."

Big brown bats - common in the area, along with little brown bats and red bats - take their fill of flying insects, including mosquitoes.

The bat Motter has befriended is one of a colony that will inhabit the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History's new cavern exhibit that opens to the public Nov. 2. If all goes well, it will eventually become the only free-flying colony of bats on exhibit in a museum in the country.

Come next spring, the 50 or so big brown bats in the colony will have access to the outside world through a 150-foot tube leading from their special exhibit within the cavern, out to Kenner Street, behind Union Terminal. Museum officials hope that after a night of dining out, the bats will return to their roost in the exhibit.

Motter works as a sculptor in the museum's exhibits department, and her craftsmanship will be evident when the museum's new Ice Age exhibit opens Nov. 2 as well. But her avocation is caring for and feeding bats, and to her has fallen the responsibility of getting this project going.

She and Anita Buck, who works in communications at the museum, have collected 14 bats so far for the colony. Most of the bats were errant youngsters - collected by Motter and Buck from panicky people's homes. Indeed, big brown bats are "house" bats, preferring to colonize man-made structures. Both Motter and Buck spend a lot of time on the phone with people who have discovered bats in their homes. Their counsel: Don't kill them.

Instead, open a window and close up whatever room it's in - the bat will find its way out. But don't, Motter warns, evict bats this month from an attic unless you're sure a mother bat hasn't left babies behind. If you absolutely cannot live with them in your attic, call the museum or an exterminator who will capture them and release them outside.

The bats keep Motter busy. In the spring she raises bat pups, usually rescued after their mothers were killed. At the museum, she'll weigh the bats, organize collecting trips, answer the phones, and spend Friday afternoons studying a bat colony in Harrison. Inside their special exhibit, where they prefer an optimum temperature of 90, the bats hang from the upside-down in clusters. Motter has them eating meal worms from a dish ("Once they figure out worms are good to eat, they find them on the dish," she says) and all are doing well and gaining weight.

"People are just scared of bats all out of proportion," says Motter. "I like bats. What is there not to like?"

JUNIATA COLLEGE SELECTED FOR STUDY

Juniata College has been selected as one of twelve colleges across the country to participate in a five year study by the National Center on Postsecondary Teaching, Learning and Assessment. Institutions representing a full spectrum of academe have been selected - from community colleges to major research universities.

Dr. William G. Tierney, associate professor and senior research associate, Center for the Study of Higher Education, The Pennsylvania State University, conducted interviews with students, faculty and administrators on campus over a two day period this fall.

"We are delighted to be part of the study," said Dr. Arnold J. Tilden, Jr., vice president for educational planning and student services. "It's like having a free annual consultation by one of the nation's leading researchers on the administration of higher education, Dr. William Tierney."

The purpose of the project is to identify administrative approaches to improving undergraduate teaching, learning and assessment. Directed by Dr. Tierney and Dr. Estela M. Bensimon, assistant professor and research associate, Center for the Study of Higher Education, The Pennsylvania State University, the project will pay particular attention to how an organization's participants have created/ or can create an effective learning environment for underrepresented groups.

Interviews and comparative case studies will be used by a team of researchers over the five year period. Interviews will be conducted annually at each institution to investigate the processes and key elements of organizational change.

Juniata College has been included because of its ongoing effort to enhance the teaching and learning environment for undergraduates through strategic planning and implementation of innovative curricular and co-curricular programs.

JUNIATA GRADUATE RECEIVES SALLIE MAE AWARD

Tonya (McClucas) Grimes, a 1990 graduate of Juniata College, was recently selected as a recipient of the prestigious Sallie Mae First Year Teacher Award given by the Student Loan Marketing Association, the nation's largest provider of financing for higher education.

Ms. Grimes is one of only 100 winners nationwide and two from the state of Pennsylvania. She is currently teaching kindergarten at Chestnut Ridge Central Elementary School in New Paris, Pa.

The Sallie Mae Award honors first year elementary and secondary school teachers for excellent performance in the classroom. Now in its seventh year, the award program asks public and private school superintendents around the country to nominate their most outstanding new teacher based on their district's criteria for excellence in the teaching field.

Nominees are then judged by panels of education experts appointed by the American Association of School Administrators. Winners are honored with a certificate of recognition and a $1000 check from Sallie Mae.

Grimes was nominated for the award by Dr. Larry Giovacchini, district superintendent of the Chestnut Ridge school district, following recommendation by elementary principal Mike Stefanick. "She's extremely deserving," said Stefanick. "She is very creative and very dependable. Her concerns, commitment, and understanding of the students are comparable to a veteran teacher."

Ms. Grimes, a 1986 graduate of Chestnut Ridge High School, returned to her alma mater because, "I saw a need in my own community....It's time to instill the values in our children that are needed."

While a student at Juniata, Ms. Grimes was selected as a co-recipient of the Juniata Woman of the Year Award for 1987-1988, an honor based on personal achievement in the arts, academics, sports and career fields, and service to the college and community. She was also awarded the William Richey Memorial Scholarship and was listed in the Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for 1989-1990. Ms. Grimes active in Student Government at Juniata, lettered in women's volleyball and was a member of the college newspaper staff.

After receiving her undergraduate degree from Juniata in elementary education, Ms. Grimes completed her student teaching at the Juniata Valley Elementary School. Dr. Fay Glosenger, associate professor of education and chair of the Education Department at the college, said of her, "As a student, Tonya was always willing to go the extra mile to better her education....She was driven, enthusiastic, and strongly committed to her goal of teaching."

The Education Department at Juniata is approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to prepare students for Pennsylvania certification in early childhood education, elementary education and secondary education in biology, chemistry, earth and space science, mathematics, physics, social studies, English, and foreign languages.

International Visitors

Juniata Admission Volunteers Play Important Role in Recruitment

by
Michelle Bartol '84
Associate Director of Admissions

Alumni recruitment of students for Juniata can take many forms. As the need for campus based admissions representatives to travel nationwide increases, the need for alumni recruitment of students simultaneously increases. With declining enrollments representing the largest percentage decrease in the northeastern portion of the United States, the Office of Admission has been engaged in extensive research to find pockets of students around the country that match Juniata's academic qualifications and are seeking the kind of environment that a small town has to offer them.

In 1989, the Office of Admission opened seven new markets throughout the United States. These markets were recruited actively by a full-time admissions representative. As a result of the increased recruitment efforts, the freshman class of 1991 represents the largest geographic diversity in recent years. Fourteen states are represented including California, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

Counselors are stretched to capacity during the heavy recruitment/travel months of September, October, November and early December. Each counselor tries to maximize contact with students during these few precious weeks throughout the fall. During fall '91, counselors travelled approximately eight to ten weeks. Each visited over 100 high schools and the counselors' combined effort resulted in attendance at approximately 80 college nights.

The joint effort of the Admissions Staff and JAV resulted in Juniata having representation in California, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia,

Current Juniata student Kristen Gentry (left) and alumnus Greg Stahl '84 met face to face for the first time in September on Juniata's campus. Both Greg and Kristen are residents of California. Greg contacted Kristen several times throughout her college search process. As a current JAV member, he relayed his positive experiences and the quality education he received at Juniata.

Georgia, Florida and Ohio.

Unfortunately, the recruitment season is only eight weeks in length. In many ways, it is a race against the calendar. The challenge is to make as many student contacts as possible and talk about Juniata College as much as you can to the appropriate audience.

Juniata Admission Volunteers (JAV) have made it possible for the recruitment efforts of the college to increase geographically without increasing the admissions staff or neglecting previous markets. JAV members have covered numerous college nights this fall making it possible for admissions counselors to be in new markets. Many JAV members already assumed sole responsibility for many college nights in their area. Our future goal is to have many more JAV members "adopt their school district." Usually this entails participation in a two hour college night and communication with the Office of Admission concerning college - high school related activities.

In September of this year, JAV members attended a fall preview sponsored by the Office of Admission. The programs were held in New Jersey, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Harrisburg and the Lehigh Valley. Member attendance confirmed commitment and graduate success for the prospective students and their parents who attended the fall preview programs.

Not all JAV members have the opportunity to participate at the same level due to location or Juniata interest in their area. However, the role that all Juniata Admission Volunteers play is equally important. All members talk about Juniata and the quality education. They encourage students to visit the campus and make efforts to get them in touch with the appropriate admissions counselor. Members distribute admissions literature to students and keep in contact with students from their area who apply. The Office of Admission strongly believes that JAV members were directly related to the quality of the current freshman class.

The Juniata Admissions Volunteer program is in its fourth fall recruitment season. We have witnessed its growth in membership and participation. Our future plans include expanded coverage in recruitment areas and the development of a program to keep JAV members in touch all four years with the Juniata student(s) that they helped to recruit.

Watch future alumni bulletins for examples of JAV in action!

JUNIATA ANNOUNCES RECIPIENTS OF ANNA GRONINGER SMITH AWARD

Juniata College recently announced the names of the recipients of the third annual Anna Groninger Smith Supporting Staff Award. The 1991 winners are Audene Hawn, residential life secretary, and Shirley Powell, secretary for the career planning and placement office and counseling center at the college.

The annual award was named for Anna Groninger Smith, who retired from the college in 1964 after serving 43 years as secretary to four presidents.

Mrs. Smith initially took a secretarial position at the college in 1921 to Dr. I. Harvey Brumbaugh, Juniata's fourth president, after attending Juniata's business school from 1919 to 1921. She also served as secretary to former Pennsylvania Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh while he was president of the college from 1924-1943.

The award is presented to a member or members of the Juniata staff who exhibit a professional, productive, and cheerful disposition in their work at the college.

Audene Hawn has served as secretary to the residential life office since 1986. Her job requires her to deal with the requests and questions of the many students, parents, and staff members who often fill the office. Although the workload is heavy, Mrs. Hawn manages to direct the flow of activity in the most productive and professional manner possible, while still providing a cheerful and understanding smile to all those who enter the office.

In addition to her job as secretary, she often volunteers to assist as emergency secretary for an unexpected job or to provide relief at the college switchboard, even if it means sacrificing her lunch break.

Mrs. Hawn resides in Petersburg with her husband, Clifford, and three children. Her daughter, Rebecca, is a senior at the college.

Shirley Powell, co-recipient of the Groninger Smith Award, provides secretarial support for both the career planning and placement office and the counseling center at the college.

Like Audene Hawn, Mrs. Powell spends much of her day dealing with students. And in spite of her heavy workload, she demonstrates an exceptional ability to communicate with and understand the many students that come to her for support and guidance. As one student describes, "She is a friend, companion, confidant, and mom.... One of Shirley's most important attributes is her willingness to listen, often putting others ahead of her own problems."

Mrs. Powell is also actively involved with the Catholic Campus Ministry at the college. This year, she is coordinating the group and its activities on a volunteer basis during the absence of the group's full-time advisor.

A resident of Huntingdon, Mrs. Powell lives with her husband, Larry, and three children. Her son, Eric, is currently a sophomore at Juniata.

Administrative Performance Award Established at Juniata

Through the generous support of Ted J. Long, a long-time friend of Juniata College, the college has established the Lucy M. Calhoun Award for Distinguished Administrative Performance.

Beginning in 1992, an annual cash award will be made to the administrative employee with at least three years of service who has shown outstanding performance of their individual job responsibilities, has made significant contributions to effective team performance within the department, shows exemplary cooperation with other departments, has a visible commitment to the values and mission of the college, is personally involved in the campus community and effectively represents the college in the local community and/or within their peer association.

Mr. Long has established endowments at Saint Francis College, the Altoona campus of Penn State and at Juniata College. In 1988 he established Juniata's Lucy M. Calhoun Scholarship, in honor of his mother, to benefit students from the service area of Long's Tile Company - Huntingdon, Blair, Cambria and Centre counties.

FALL WRAP-UP

LADY SPIKERS FINISH THIRD

Juniata College earned the third-place trophy in the 1991 NCAA Division III Women's Volleyball Championship. Coach Larry Bock's team travelled to Washington University in St. Louis for Juniata's seventh straight national semifinal appearance, and its ninth in 11 years.

The Indians lost to top-ranked defending champion University of California at San Diego 3-0 in the semifinals, but bounced back for a 3-1 victory over Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the third-place match.

Juniata finished the season with a 44-6 record, pushing Bock's career coaching mark to 549-105 over 15 years. The Tribe also won its 11th straight Middle Atlantic Conference title and ran its unbeaten streak in MAC matches to 146.

Senior middle hitter Larissa Weimer and freshman outside hitter Christy Orndorff earned first-team All-America honors from the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA). Both were also All-MAC and All-East selections.

Orndorff led the team with 494 kills, 81 aces and 414 digs. Her dig total is the second-best single-season figure ever at Juniata. Weimer had a team-high 150 total blocks and was third with 349 kills. She is third all-time at Juniata with 530 career blocks.

On the outside, sophomore Nicki Firestone had 440 kills this fall to push her career total to 962, fifth on the all-time chart. Sophomore Andrea Hankey recorded 295 kills and was second on the team with 83 total blocks.

Junior middle hitter Shelly Miller had 321 kills, hit a team-high .389, and added 79 total blocks. Senior Gina Leis had 283 digs and 66 service aces as a defensive specialist in her final season.

The back-row also featured sophomore Missy Glass and junior Kim Hannig with 147 and 54 digs, respectively. Sophomore Danielle Bush had 582 assists before moving from setter to defensive specialist. Freshman setter Heather Blough made 1382 assists as the quarterback of the offense.

The young team (just two seniors) put together the fifth-best winning percentage (.880) in program history. Juniata also won four regular-season tournament championships, including the Slippery Rock Invitational, the Juniata Coca-Cola Classic, the Elizabethtown Halloween Classic, and the Juniata McDonald's Invitational crowns.

Football

Juniata finished with a 3-7 overall record and 3-5 Middle Atlantic Conference mark, tied for fifth in the nine-team league. Third-year coach Brad Small's team closed out the campaign by winning two of its last four contests.

The Indians lost three games to NCAA Division III playoff teams — undefeated Allegheny (10-19), undefeated Lycoming (7-28) and once-beaten Susquehanna (16-34).

Senior split end Kevin Fayette was the leading receiver in the MAC this season and earned second-team All-MAC honors. He caught 47 passes for 701 yards and two touchdowns in seven conference appearances (6.7 catches per game).

Fayette had 61 grabs for 865 yards and two scores overall. It was the second-most receptions and fourth-best yardage total in a season for a receiver at Juniata. He closed with 73 career catches for 1,050 yards.

Senior quarterback Jason Miller, third in total offense (170.5) and fifth in the MAC in passing efficiency (104.8 rating), completed 152-of-283 passes overall for 1,732 yards and four touchdowns. Miller ended his career third in school history for completions (354) and passing yards (4,619), and sixth in TD passes (23).

Senior running back Bill Posavek became only Juniata's 21st career 1,000-yard rusher. He had 229 carries for 773 yards and six touchdowns this season to push his career figures to 360 for 1,173 with 10 TDs, 15th in rushing yards. Posavek, honorable mention All-MAC, was fourth in the league rushing race this fall with 74.4 yards per league game.

Senior offensive guard Mike Hogue (second team), senior offensive tackle Rob Reeder (honorable mention), and senior offensive center Newt Holobinko (honorable mention) were also MAC all-stars this season.

For the defense, senior first-team All-MAC cornerback Brian Giachetti was the team interception leader for the second straight season, recording five this year. Giachetti also averaged 11.6 yards per punt return and 18.4 yards on kickoffs. He has 16 career interceptions (sixth in school history) and a 12.6 yard punt return average (second).

Senior outside linebacker Matt Gibson, a second-team All-MAC choice, was the tackle leader with 84 total stops (24 solos). Junior tackle Joe Kimmel, who earned All-MAC honorable mention, had 76 tackles with 25 solos and led the team with five sacks (minus-39 yards) and 11 tackles for lost yardage (minus-60).

Junior linebacker Paul Gladfelter, who battled a knee injury, earned All-MAC honorable mention. He had 56 tackles this fall.

Sophomore Matt Baker topped the MAC with a 36.7 yard punting average and was first-team All-MAC at punter. He averaged 34.5 yards per punt overall. He had 22 kick-scoring points, making four-of-11 field goal tries and 10-of-17 extra points overall.

Field Hockey

Coach Kathi Quinn's Juniata field hockey team finished 8-6-1 overall for its fourth straight winning campaign, one year shy of tying the program-record streak of five consecutive .500-plus seasons from 1976-80.

The Tribe was 3-2 in the Middle Atlantic Conference Southwest section. The third-place finish just missed making the MAC playoffs for the second straight season.

Senior Renee Rine had a team-high 12 goals and added three assists this season to lead the team in scoring for the second straight season. Rine, who earned All-MAC honors, pushed her career goal-scoring total to 38, tying Kathleen McGowan's previous school record.

Senior Suzanne McMannus was second in scoring to Rine for the second straight season, with six goals and two assists for the campaign. Classmate Linda Olsen finished just behind McMannus with five goals and one assist. Senior Carolyn Sheedy added two goals on the year and was also an All-MAC choice.

Junior goal-keeper Anne McNelly recorded three shutouts for the season with a goals-against-average of 1.53 per game. However, that figure was just 1.0 goals per game over the last six outings of the campaign.

Men's Soccer

It was a record-breaking season for the Juniata men's soccer team. The Indians finished with a 6-9-1 overall record for coach John Mumford. It is the best record in the 13-year history of the program. No other Tribe soccer team had won more than four games in a single season.

Freshman Larry Kidd and sophomore David Ndlovu were the leading scorers for the team this fall. Each had seven goals for the Indians, with Kidd adding one assist to take the scoring title with 15 points.

Sophomores Tom Heffner and Wilson Antoniuk were right behind Kidd and Ndlovu with five goals each. Heffner led the team with four assists while Antoniuk added three.

Juniata, which scored 1.63 goals per game, allowed 2.1 a contest. Sophomore goalie Frank Armetta recorded two shutouts in his second season as starter.

Mumford loses just three seniors from the squad: captain Steve Schierloh, Andy Loomis and Jim Davis.

Men's and Women's Cross Country

It was a successful season for the Juniata College cross country teams. Both the men's and women's teams were coached once again this fall by Jim Payne.

The women placed 14th in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships after a 7-2 dual record — Juniata's second winning campaign in three years and the program's best record since going 8-2-1 in 1986. The men were 18th at MACs, but were 5-4 in dual meets for the first winning record since 1982 (9-3).

Seniors Kim Wurth and Teresa Richards were the leading runners for the women cross country team while sophomore Joe Kibler and junior Jeff Hetrick paced the men.

Wurth led the women's squad with five first-place showings for the Tribe and added two second-place runs. Richards was the first Juniata women's runner to finish on four occasions, and had a team-best nine top-two performances.

Kibler had six first-place finishes for the men with two second-places. Hetrick was first four times and second in six races, leading the team with 10 top-two showings.

Juniors Sara Smith and Brenda Laverty were other key contributors for the women along with freshmen Stephanie Murdock and Allison Klein. Senior Jackie Calaboyias will be lost to graduation.

For the men, freshmen Mike Campion, Wesley Rich, Dan Stuck and Dan Schaeffer were all important contributors as rookies. Junior Brett Miller will join classmate Hetrick as a leader next fall.

SEAHAWKS BATTLE THE STEELERS, ALUMNI SHARE IN THE VICTORY

A popular event held on October 20, 1991 brought alumni and friends to a delectable brunch with the opportunity to meet Juniata's new vice president for college advancement, Donald D. Moyer and time together for cheering our own Chuck Knox '54 on to a victory. We met at the Grand Concourse, Station Square, on the Gateway Clipper and at Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh. Forty persons joined us for the day of fun, good conversations, beautiful scenery on the boat and the sights and sounds of football.

JUNIATA COLLEGE ALUMNI TOURS

March 11-23, 1992:

AMAZON ADVENTURE

A wonderful trip to the Amazon is being planned! This tour will provide an opportunity to learn much about a region seldom seen. You will sail into the jungles of Brazil; explore 1000 miles of the Amazon; visit the colorful river port of Manaus; and wind through the dense jungle at the amazing Narrows of Breves. To the mystery of the Amazon, we add the intriguing port of Devil's Island and the Caribbean playgrounds of Barbados and San Juan. This is a unique combination of exquisite islands and unparalleled river adventure. Your hosts for this tour will be Robert and Dorothy Neff '59.

August 11-28, 1992:

GREAT BRITAIN

This exciting journey takes you to London, Bristol, Snowdonia National Park, Chester, the Lake District, the Scottish Highlands, Edinught, Stratford and Windsor. Special features are a London Show, a Welsh Medieval Banquet, a cruise off the coast of Scotland, the Military Tattoo in Edinburgh, a Shakespeare Play in Stratford. Your flights, all hotels, two meals daily, all sightseeing and admission fees included. Limited space available. Hosted by: Rex and Dorothy Hershberger '50 '50.

December 7-15, 1992:

CHRISTMAS IN AUSTRIA AND BAVARIA

Another special departure for this popular season will take us for three nights in to the SALZBURG area, to visit this city before the Mozart year ends; attend a concert; enjoy a sleigh ride; then stay four nights in the village of Emsing/Bavaria. There you will visit the famous Christmas Market in Nuernberg and attend an operetta at the Opera House. You will visit medieval towns, similar to those found in a storybook. Decorate a Juniata Christmas tree and experience much more. Flights, hotels, two meals daily, all sightseeing and special events included. You can not afford to miss this special reunion. Hosts: Robert and Dorothy Neff '59.

PREVIEW OF 1993 TOURS:

Spring, 1993:

PUERTO RICO — Eight day cruise and land exploration. This trip is a preface to the publication, Martin G. Brumbaugh: Pennsylvania's Forgotten Patriot. Author Dr. Earl Kaylor, Jr. 46, and spouse Dr. Harriet Kaylor will serve as guides, informing us of the infusion of M.G. (first Commissioner of education) into Puerto Rico and to gain appreciation of the contribution he and other Juniadians made in establishing a public school system. Dr. Kaylor's expertise will add significant contributions to this trip.

Summer, 1993:

ALUMNI CHOIR TOUR — to HOLLAND, BELGIUM, GERMANY AND FRANCE. The windmills and canals of Holland, the Rhine River, Marburg, Schwarzenau, Brussels, Ghent, Strasbourg and Heidelberg are just a few of the highlights of this journey.
